

It's too bad Mark David Robinson is unaware what the City of Greensboro thinks of him but it's been rather black and white for years--just ask Tony Hill, Gil Maness and myself (and any number of people "since" unhappy with Nancy Vaughan's financial policies: police and wealthy white folks like "Skip" Alston and his old lady). Tony Hill came to Westerwood years ago but not for long. The system railroaded him despite his doing nothing--where he's at now, who knows, but it ain't the white neighborhood; not railroaded but electronically tarred and feathered was Gil Maness--he owned his own business and lived there so couldn't be run out of town like Hill was, but I did not find Maness to be anywhere near like Andrew Swofford--the city took Maness's life and put it on display--all of it negative, courtesy of Nancy Vaughan's liberal buddies she put in government because they were like her: white with money so knew someone. When Charlotte Reese screamed at me like she had others I took it to the city--the city's response was giving her cops although it is also true she was charged--for screaming at police--but then she got cops, anyway. "At night so no one would know." When I told the city about Andrew Swofford's drug problems in Lake Daniel Park the city gas-lighted me for not telling them enough for law enforcement to go on--now Swofford is all over the Web which is where it was headed with him, anyway; I told the city that, too. Simply put, I see a lot of people unhappy with the City of Greensboro a minority of them white. Even Andrew Swofford knows the illegal hierarchy--he's white, too, though (with a touch of meth) and so was Charlotte Reese who glared black people down from her property and other spots near her home--both Reese and Swofford were crazy, but also white and associated with nice homes, and therefore, money: so got police. In Greensboro, you get cops for even smelling like money--next thing you know it's a crowd of well-heeled idiots: even if you're Andrew Swofford you'll get connections like friend to the Swofford's Community Watch Gail Barger who coddled and watched-out for Swofford--so pursued to no end Hill and Maness and whoever else "didn't have money." On account of my continuing to talk about this the GPD has even been to Catawba County and more than once--they don't like being challenged--the Department has a hang-up for the bottom line, so even also bailed-out handy-man Gil Maness (now dead in SC but half dead after GCSO under Barnes was through with serving him for continuing to come to me) Maynard was one of many people who came to me day and night in efforts to have me charged and/or arrested--if I did or said something in return, that's the scam and conspiracy featuring police--I was finally charged, after about two years of their trying, and like Maness and Hill took the blame for all of it. But I'll never really comply so contacted the DOJ thanks
